Fashion in Motion celebrates the work of Saul Nash with a specially commissioned live performance in the V&A's Raphael Court. Responding to the gallery's monumental architecture and historic artworks, Nash has created a new piece that reflects his design philosophy, rooted in movement and physical expression.

SAUL NASH

Raised in North East London, Saul Nash founded his eponymous brand in 2018. Central to his practice is a commitment to designing technical garments that support movement, with work that sits at the intersection of fashion and dance.

Since its launch, the brand has garnered international recognition for its innovative approach to technical menswear and its challenge to conventional societal norms. Nash's designs combine luxury, functionality, and expressive detail, drawing on genderless sportswear and a commitment to reimagining traditional athleisure codes. In 2022, Saul Nash received both the prestigious International Woolmark Prize and the Queen Elizabeth II Award for British Design, awarded within the same month.
